Assault Tank

Lara Janik is one of Bannson's Raiders' newer tank commanders, but in short order she has earned her reputation as one of the deadliest shots in the Wyld's Jokers regiment. She is a trained marksman in various forms of ranged weaponry, from archaic bows to modern autocannons and particle weapons, and she has hunted the exotic fauna on dozens of alien worlds both for sport and for fame. Lara's skills even won her a syndicated holo-series for big-game hunters across The Republic.

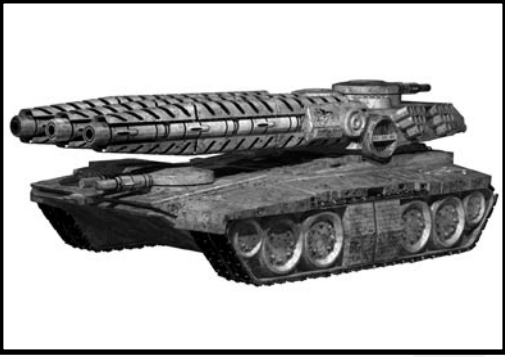

Recently, Lara captured the notice of Bannson's Raiders, who were looking to fill out their newly formed Wyld's

FE-114-02

Heavily armed, armored, and equipped to target multiple hostile units at one time, the DI Morgan (named in honor of Morgan Hasek-Davion) emerged from the factory lines of Defiance Industries on Hesperus II shortly after the world's liberation from the Blakist Jihad. Defiance, the Lyran Alliance's largest military manufacturing facility, was heavily damaged by the fighting, so they licensed many of their designs to other Lyran factories in order to meet the staggering demand for vehicles and 'Mechs needed to rearm House Steiner's battered army.

Upon the formation of The Republic, several of these vehicles were part of the Steiner units that declared their loyalty to Devlin Stone. Serial number LAT111-DM1a is one of the few Morgans that came directly from Defiance Industries' Hesperus plant, and has received the nickname of "Triple Bolt" from its current crew in reference to the three bolts of man-made lightning it can unleash in a single volley.
