Katina's prowess earned her a slot in Captain Tara Bishop's command lance just before the famous campaign

Katina is fiercely proud of her place in the Highlanders, and has taken to heart the ideals of its commander, Countess Tara Campbell, going so far as to assume Campbell's enmities. Though she blames all factions for the breakdown of central authority in The Republic, Katina—like Campbell—holds the Dragon's Fury and the Steel Wolves most directly responsible, as both were the first to break ranks when the HPGs fell silent.

Occasionally tagged a poor-Clan's Mad Cat, the Vulture was the preferred heavy 'Mech of the Ghost Bear Clan during the invasion of the Inner Sphere, though it appeared quite often among many other Clan Toumans as well. Though lacking in armor, its considerable mix of heavy LRM racks and pulse lasers could inflict severe damage even against heavy 'Mechs, making it a force to be reckoned with in the field.

The unnamed Vulture piloted by Naomi Katina is a rare bird indeed, having originated with the Smoke Jaguar Clan before its Annihilation at the hands of the reborn Star League in 3060. It was fitted with twice its normal complement of missile racks in exchange for a battery of smaller laser weapons. Captured during the Inner Sphere's operation to liberate worlds captured from the Draconis Combine, the machine passed from House Kurita to The Republic after the Jihad.
