At 31 years old, Seka Ward may be past her prime in the eyes of traditional Clan warriors, but her peers in the Wolfkin Keshik remain unconvinced of this fact, largely due to her astonishing beauty and seductive manner. Though born and bred as a warrior of the Wolf Clan, Seka's natural beauty reportedly drew the attention of modeling agencies and holofilm producers before the HPG crash. Realizing early on the value of good looks among the less militaristic peoples of The Republic, she learned quickly how to seduce and manipulate those around her. Though many younger warriors derided such "extracurricular activities,"

The immensely powerful Mad Cat II assault 'Mech is one of the most fearsome monstrosities ever to emerge from Clan military factories in over a century. Heavily armored, and boasting enough firepower to eradicate virtually anything lighter than itself, this 'Mech even features excellent maneuverability to boot. Only the poor heat management of this design prevents it from being an unstoppable killing machine, though a skilled MechWarrior can easily overcome such limitations.

This Mad Cat II, assigned to Seka Ward, actually runs hotter than other Mad Cat II designs. Originally produced for export sale by Clan Sea Fox, this machine was sold to The Republic and came into the Shiva Keshik's possession shortly after the crash of the HPG grid. Seka has nicknamed the 'Mech "Deadly Beauty" in cautious reference to herself, and shows a marked preference for staggering her weapons in battle to avoid catastrophic overload.
